About Resource

JSTOR provides access to more than 12 million academic journal articles, books, and primary sources in 75 disciplines. It helps to explore a wide range of scholarly content through a robust research and teaching platform. JSTOR collaborate with the academic community to help libraries connect students and faculty to vital content while lowering costs and increasing shelf space, provide independent researchers with free and low-cost access to scholarship, and help publishers reach new audiences and preserve their content for future generations.

Home Page

- Visit the library website. Click on electronic resources, then Alphabetical list of Electronic resources, and click on JSTOR.

Connect to content through your institution

With a personal account, you can:

- Access your institution's content, even when you're not on campus.
- Ensure that you're finding and saving material that your institution provides access to.
- Quickly sign in to JSTOR directly from the JSTOR site no matter where you're doing your research.
- <https://www.jstor.org/> (Link to access)

To pair your personal account to your institution's account:

1.First, make sure you log in to your school's account. You can log in automatically on campus or connect to your institution via Proxy, Shibboleth, or VPN.

2.Next, create a personal account or sign in to your existing personal account.

Your personal account is now paired with your institution. The next time you want to sign in through your school, you can sign in to your personal account to get access to your school's subscription.

Personal account pairing to your institution will be automatically renewed when logging into JSTOR while on campus or using one of your institution's registered remote access methods.

Off Campus

Note:

If you are residing outside the campus? then use our OpenAthens facility to access JSTOR.
